

The Chart of the Stopford Sackvilles

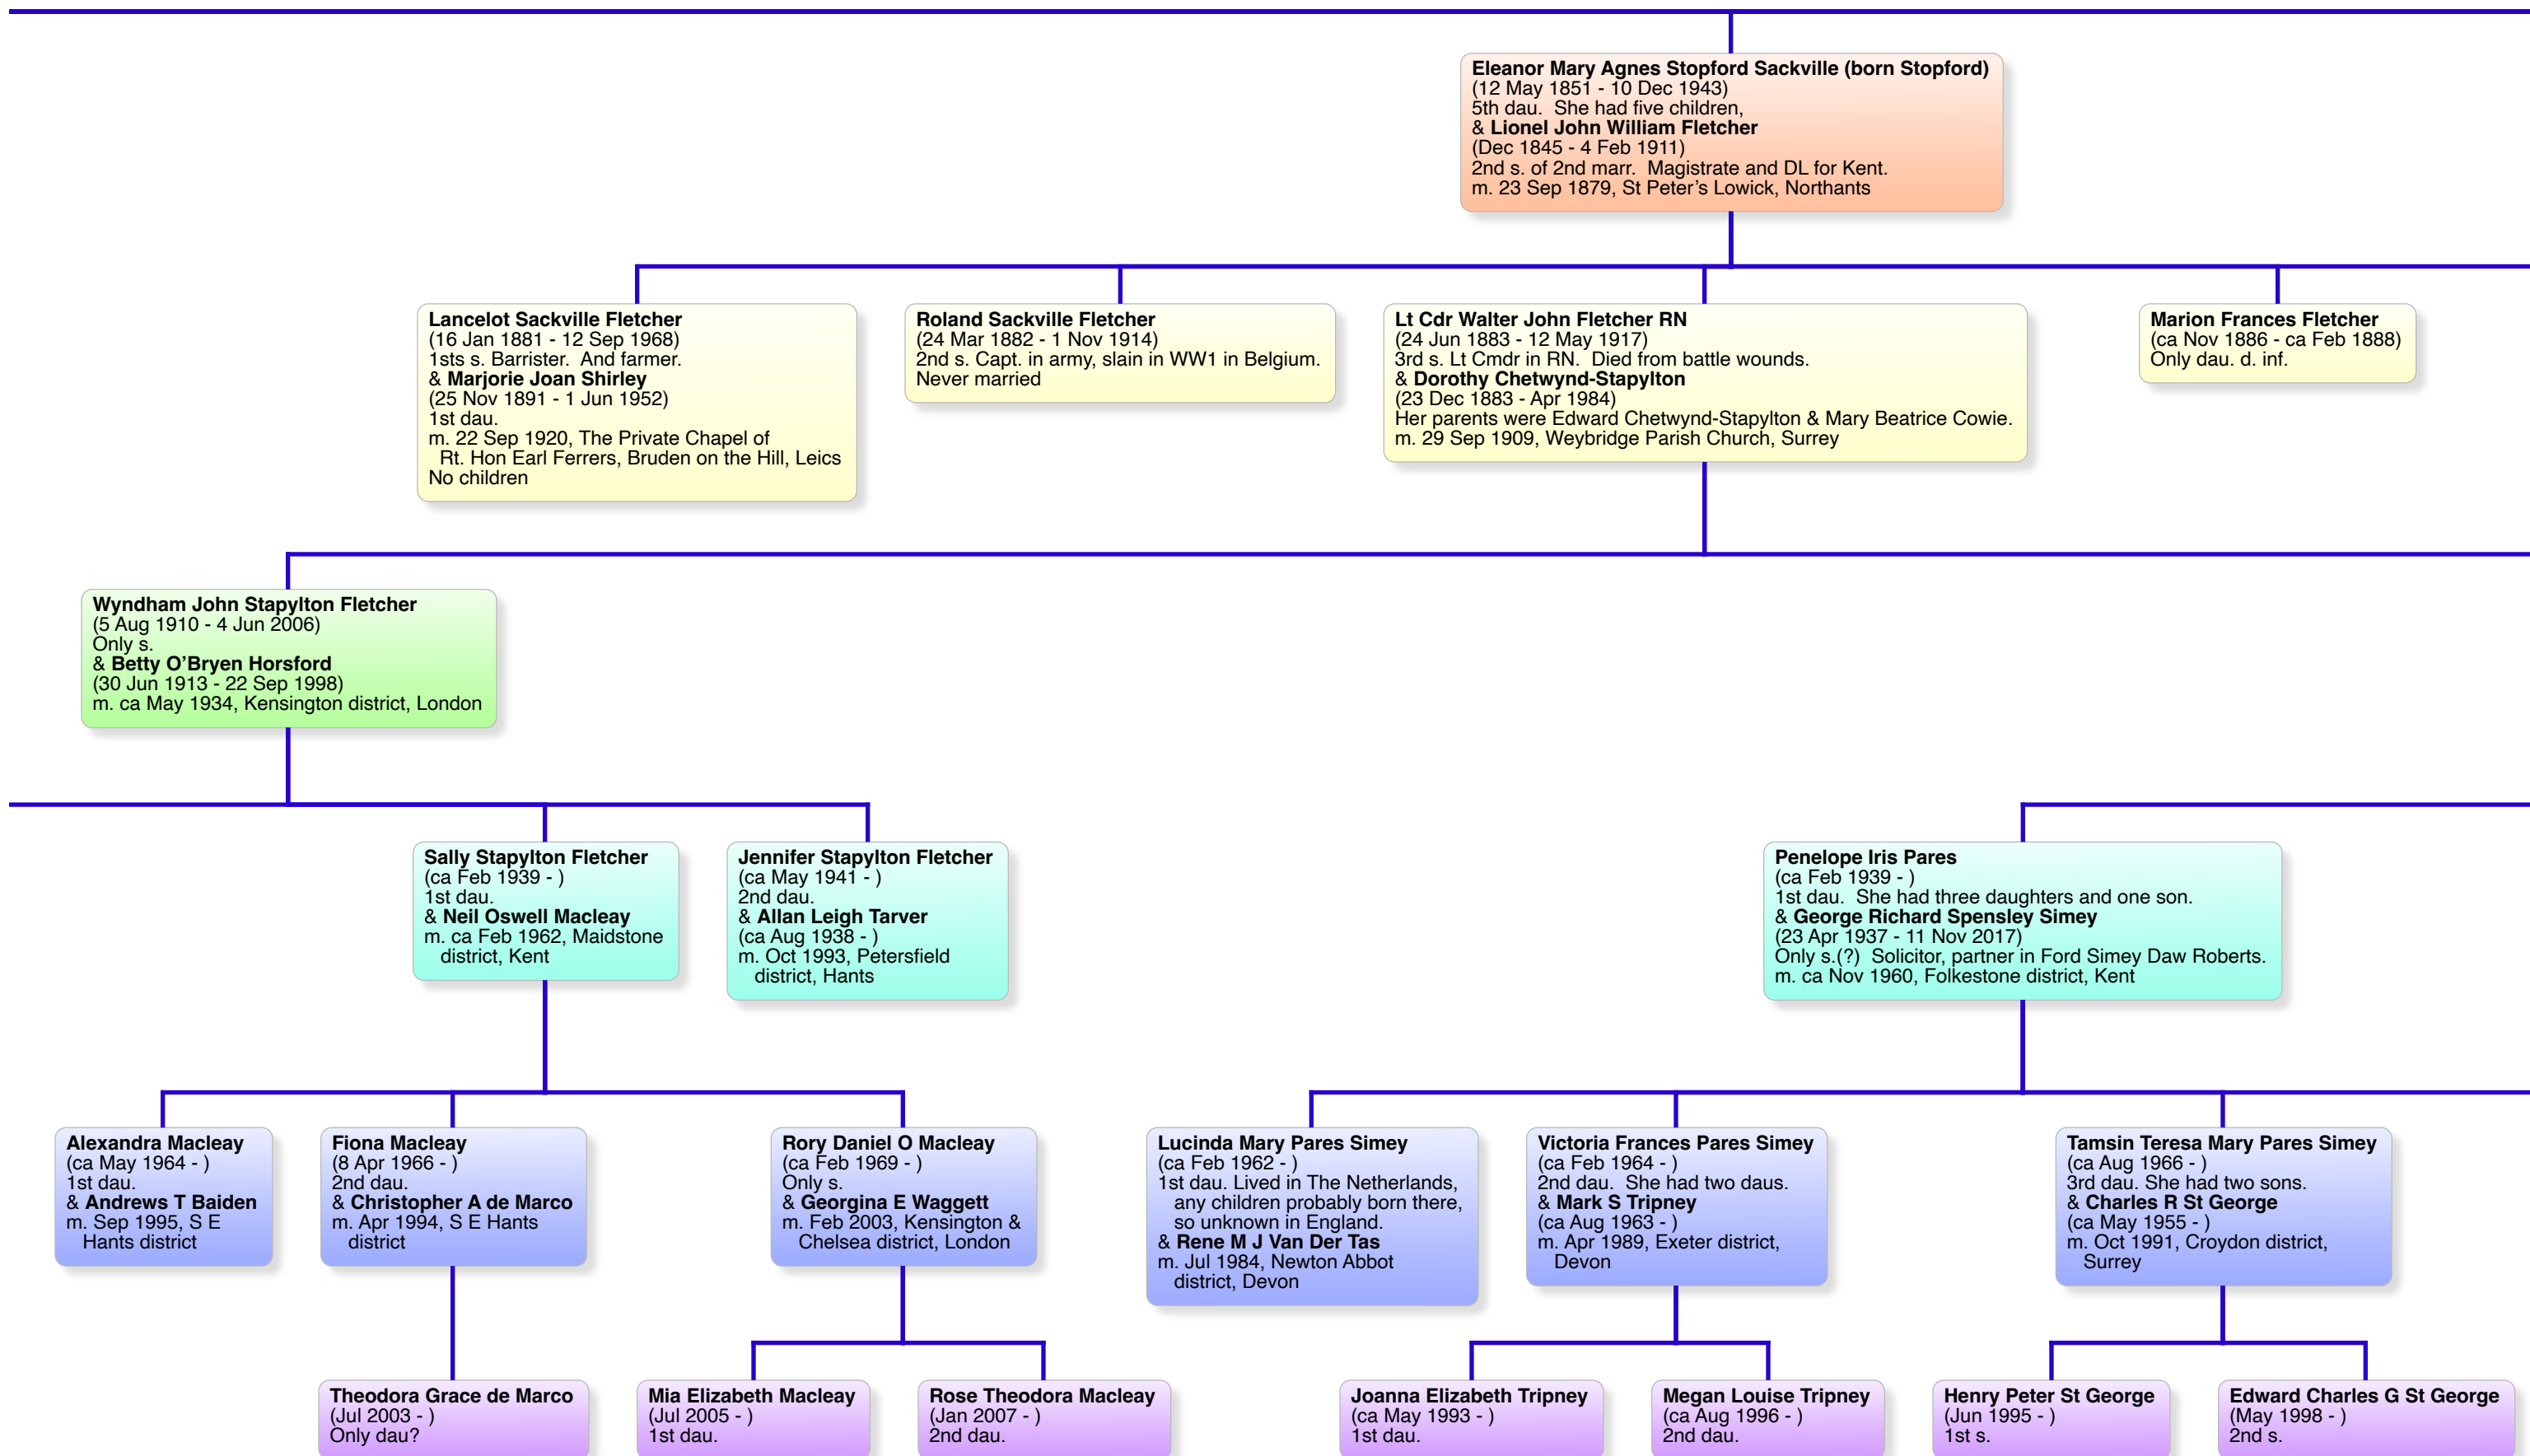

Eleanor Powys was the mother of William Bruce, the first Stopford Sackville. She was the first child of Thomas Powys the first baron Lilford. William Bruce was her fifth child; I have done the elder four, revised the fifth, here, and done her last four children. Then it will be the second child of the first baron. And so on. It will take ages.

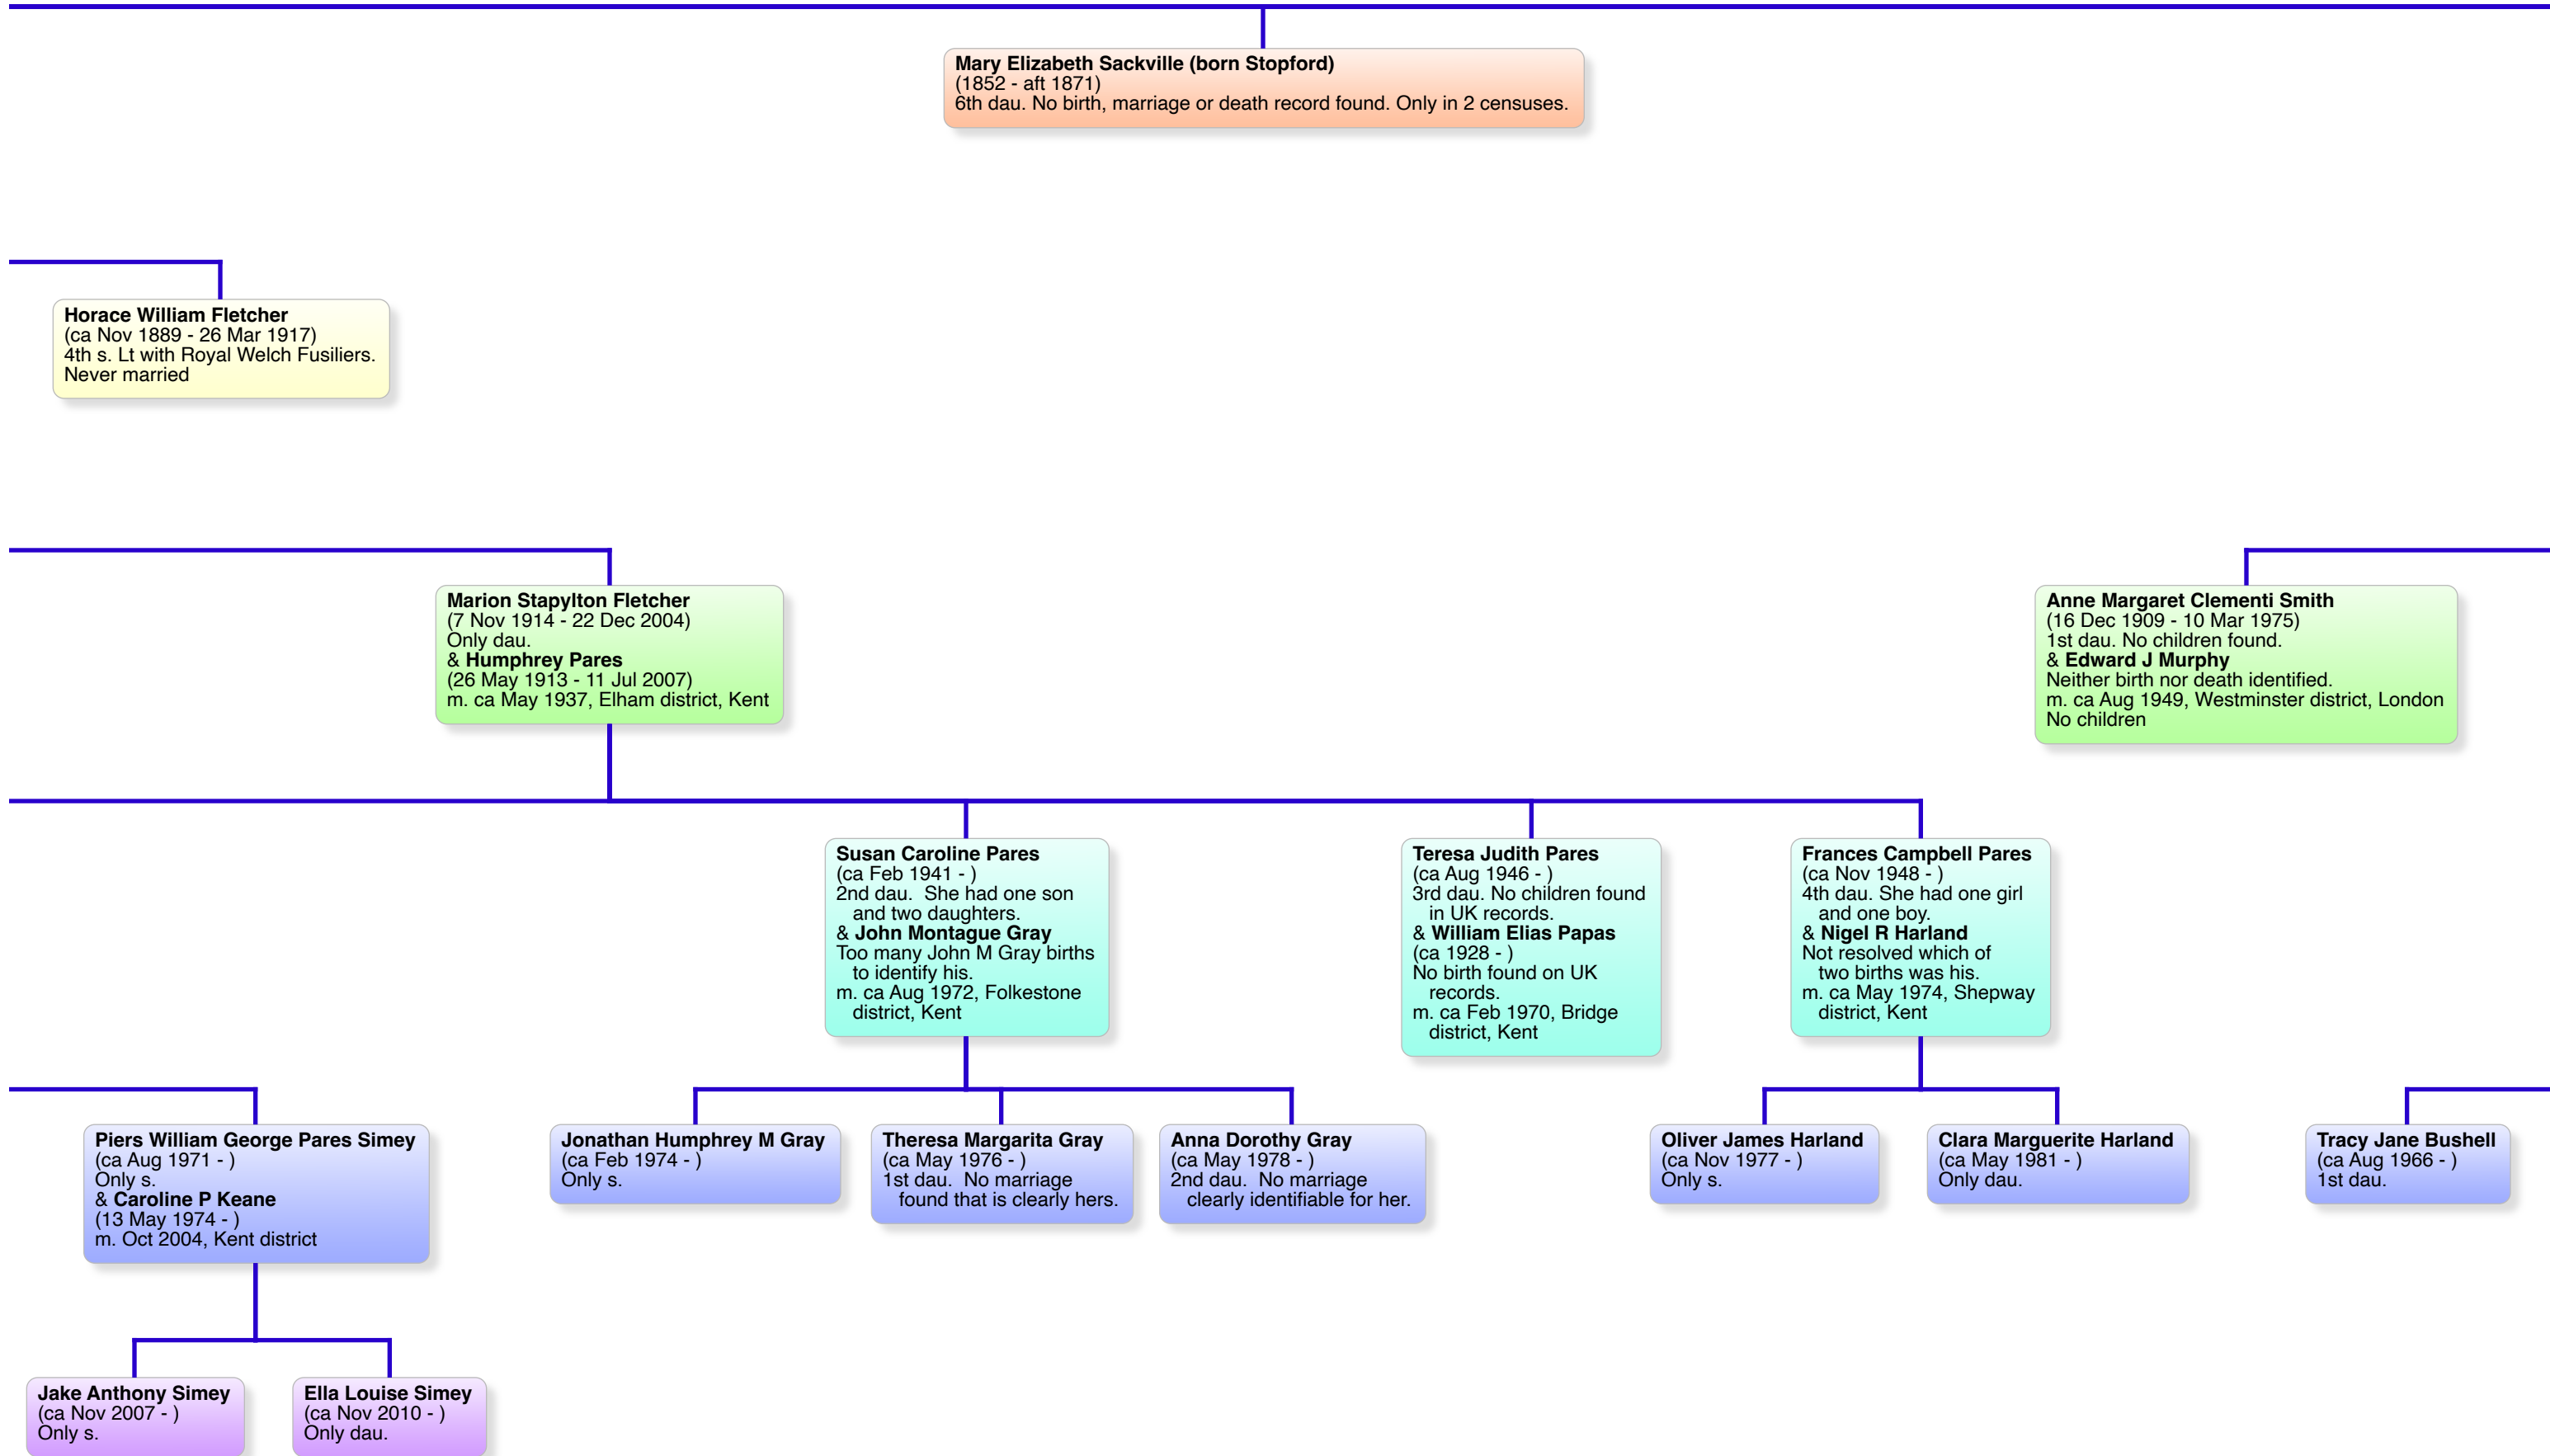

This is one fragment of an attempt to catalogue all the descendants of Sir Thomas Powys. It is being done from public records, where I can find them. Some people dodged putting their families on public records; our Trotter ancestors did this in the 19th century. Others moved out of England to places where they don't have or don't release public records, so they get lost. Some people marry others who share their names with many others and then which of the many John Smiths is which? So they are lost. Some are alive in the last 100 years and the fashion has developed for keeping oneself private and unknown to the multitudes. The censuses are hit by this curse, so addition and confirmation from such are lost. So a few more are lost. Finally there is the competence of your scribe. He may fail to find available records and lose a few more thereby. Give it ten years, fifty or even a hundred and quite a lot more people will be found for this chart. Who might care to do that work in a hundred years from now?
